LONDON, MARCH 30.

Colonel ISAAC BARRE's Speech, when the motion was made in the house of commons for sending Alderman OLIVER to the Tower. [Lon. Pa.

Mr. Speaker,

SINCE I had the honour, or rather dishonour, of sitting in this house, I have been witness to many strange, many shameful transactions; but, since I could call myself a member of the British senate, never were my ears shocked with such an abominable proposal as that which now disgraces this assembly. A representative of the first city in the empire, or perhaps in the world, is to be treated as a state criminal, for supporting the general rights of the nation, and the peculiar privileges of his fellow citizens. It has been proved to a demonstration, that your claim of privilege was meant as a bulwark against the encroachments of the crown, and not as a check upon your constituents. It has been clearly shewn, that you have acted contrary to Magna Charta, and that the arraigned magistrates have adhered to the law of the land. Nor is this all—You have been convicted of invading the peculiar franchises of the city, and of trampling on numerous statutes made in its favour—while the objects of your impotent malice have only acted according to the dictates of conscience and in obedience of their oath.—You will punish them, because they would not for the purposes of your tyranny betray their trust, and be guilty to perjury. What can be your intention in such an attack upon all honour and virtue? Do you mean to bring all men to a level with yourselves, and to extirpate all honesty and independence? Perhaps you imagine that a vote will settle the whole controversy? Alas! you are not aware, that the manner in which your vote is procured, remains a secret to no man. Listen—for, if you are not totally callous; if your consciences are not seared, I will speak Daggers to your souls. Whence did this motion take its rise? where was the scheme concerted? did it originate in this house? Is it the legitimate offspring of this assembly? No; it is the abortion of five wretched clerks, who though a disgrace to this house, have the management, I beg pardon, the mismanagement of all national affairs. These pitiful drudges brought the treasury into the scheme; the treasury influenced the Junto of Carlton-house; Carlton-house set all the administration in motion; and the administration gave life and vigour to the machines that compose the majority. Thus are you played off like puppets for the entertainment of the magicians that act behind the curtain. Do you not blush at such infamy? Do not your cheeks burn with conscious shame at being mere walking plants, perfect oxen in a stall, fed by the hand of your master, and forced to draw in his yoke? By heaven, I had rather not be, than drag such a heavy, such a galling, such a detestable chain. There are, indeed, those, of whose commands I should be proud, because their service is perfect freedom. The instructions of your constituents you should be always ready to obey. But you have inverted the maxim of the gospel, and made the servant greater than his master. You, who are only deputies or factors, have usurped a power not only superior to that of your creators, but destructive of the very rights by which they exist as freemen.

In the gulph of your privileges you have swallowed up the birthright of the people, who are ultimately paramount to all the three branches of the legislature. Had you been as tenacious of your duty as of your interest, you would have first provided for the safety of the people's rights, and then entered into the discussion of your own privileges. It is the privilege of the people to be tried by the law of the land, and to see the course of justice free and uninterrupted. Both you have flagrantly violated, and opened a door for anarchy and confusion.

But where is the wonder that you act in this arbitrary manner, when you would not allow mention to be made of the traiterous member, who declared in the face of day, that he hoped to see his Majesty as absolute and despotic as the king of Prussia; and that he had bought his constituents, and made of their instructions [illegible] not fit to be named! Had you been true representatives, you would have immediately dropped every other subject, and removed from among you, such an accursed thing, such an abomination to all honour and honesty. But you love to protect culprits; because of such is your kingdom composed.

How then can you imagine, that the people will tamely acquiesce in injuries received from men of your stamp? How can you imagine, that Britons will endure an act of tyranny, as arbitrary as any practised by the despot of France? Louis the well beloved erases the acts of his Parliaments; and our beloved house of commons erases the legal proceedings of our courts of record.—Why, the violence of Charles the first, when he entered the house in person, and seized the five members, was not a matter of such pernicious example. You have struck at the very root of all law and justice, and endeavoured at one blow to annihilate all our liberties.

The consequence is natural. After having assumed an arbitrary dominion over truth and justice, you issue orders, warrants, and proclamations against every opponent, and send prisoners to your Bastile all those who have the virtue and courage to defend the expiring freedom of their country. But it is in vain that you hope by fear and terror to extinguish every spark of the ancient fire of this isle. The more Sacrifices, the more Martyrs you make, the more numerous the Sons of Liberty will become. They will multiply like the Hydra's head, and hurl vengeance on your devoted heads. Let others act as they will, while I have a tongue or an arm, they shall be free. And that I may not be a witness of this monstrous proceeding, I will leave the house; nor do I doubt but every independent, every honest man, every friend to England, will follow me.

LONDON, MARCH 30.

Alderman TOWNSEND's Speech in defence of the LORD-MAYOR.

Mr. Speaker,

I Have listened with the utmost attention to the gentlemen who, on this occasion, contend for the omnipotence of the House; but I cannot say their arguments have wrought my conversion. Had not more weighty arguments been applied to them, I violently suspect that they would have been still Infidels.—In order to justify the erasure of the record entered in the Lord-Mayor's book, they have produced instances, in which the House has stopped the course of justice. But is this a national apology? Because the House has acted formerly in an arbitrary and despotic manner, are we to copy their example, and to set up the Standard of tyranny? Precedents can never be a sufficient sanction to what is in the nature of things illegal and unconstitutional. No man of sense ever quotes the decisions of antiquity, but as circumstances exculpatory or corroborative of what he has previously shewed to be contrary or conformable to reason. Were not this the case, what would become of our dearest rights? Precedents for the violation of all our liberties may be found in your journals; and, indeed, the journals are so discordant and contradictory, that you need never be at a loss for precedents, whatever side of the question you embrace. They may be twisted and twined like a nose of wax.——Let us not then hear of precedent in deciding a plain constitutional question, whose solution must be obvious to the meanest capacity.—If precedents had any decisive authority, what could have been more legal than general warrants? They were countenanced by a series of undisputed precedents, not only before, but since the revolution. Yet what was their fate? When they came to be questioned, and were discovered not to be founded on any positive law, they were set aside, since they were both in principle and practice incompatible with a free government.

Nor is this wonderful, when we consider that even positive laws are repealed, when it is found that they are prejudicial to the state. Salus populi suprema lex esto, was long the maxim of the Roman commonwealth; and I could wish that it were more attended to in this House. Were it the standard of our conduct, there would have been less occasion for this day's debate. The nation and its representatives would not stand in diametrical opposition; nor would the city of London find it necessary to set the Commons at defiance. Unfortunately for this country, too many of us are more assiduous to feed female caprice than to satisfy their constituents. Instead of endeavouring to deserve well of the public, they strive to deserve well of one woman, who has during the present reign governed this nation.

Here several members cried out, Name her! Name her! Why then, if I must name her, her name is Augusta, Princess Dowager of Wales. [Here he was called to order, but he proceeded.] Sir, I am not in a humour to retract or eat my words. That infamy I leave to the ministerial gentry. I am not yet courtly enough to say, and unsay, the same thing in a breath. Were I such a crouching spaniel, I should plead the cause of Liberty with a very bad grace: I do aver, that for these ten years past, we have been governed by one woman, and that woman is, the Princess Dowager of Wales. If you doubt what I advance, appoint a committee for inquiring into her conduct, and I dare say, that you will find my assertion to be a fact. It is not that I have any aversion to petticoat government. My objection is only to bad government. I care not who is in leading-strings. Let national affairs be properly managed, and I am satisfied. But, while the rights of the people in general are invaded, while the particular franchises of London are violated, while the course of justice is violently obstructed, and while successive acts of despotism render the people impatient of their chain, and ripe for resistance; I cannot help warning you of your danger, and pointing out the proper remedy for present and future evils. If you do not punish great criminals, the people it is to be feared, will take the execution of the laws into their own hands. Such a conduct you will find more honourable, and, in the end, more safe, than to persecute, as you do, the defenders of the law and the constitution. The city magistrates will be all over the empire considered, and justly considered, as Martyrs to Liberty; and they may raise a flame, which will only terminate in your destruction. Recollect the alarm occasioned by the imprisonment of the seven Bishops. Do you imagine, men will now struggle less eagerly for their rights than at the revolution? Believe me, the nation is not yet so tame and pusillanimous. It will as little suffer you to become the passive instruments of Tyranny, as the bigoted James. Let despotism assume what name or appearance it pleases, let it be called a Star-Chamber, or a House of Commons, a King, or a Parliament, the people will make a defence suitable to the nature of the attack.

The Sovereign formerly claimed the power of suspending the laws, and of issuing proclamations superior to statutes, and even to Magna Charta. The people resisted. You now claim the same power of suspending the laws, and of passing votes paramount in authority to the most sacred and fundamental constitutions of the realm. You swallow up every thing in the gulph of your privileges. How can you imagine that the people should not resist? They resisted on the same principles in the reign of Charles the second; they resisted on the same principles in the reign of Queen Anne. What was the consequence? A dissolution of the tyrannical bodies, that dared to be guilty of such outrages. I hope no worse consequence will attend your present encroachments. That event, which you dread as the greatest of evils, is fervently prayed for by every honest man, by every friend to England; and, indeed, it is a consummation devoutly to be wished for. [LONDON PACKET.]

CHARLES-TOWN, June 6.

LAST Friday arrived here, from Boston, His Majesty's Sloop Viper, commanded by Captain Foster, ordered on this Station.

On Saturday returned from London, in the Ship Carolina, Capt. Miles Lowley, Mr. Thomas Corbett, Merchant, Thomas Evance, Esq; Mr. Richard Shubrick, Capt. Richard Brewer, with near Twenty other Passengers.

Last Sunday put into this Port, having sprung a Leak, and her Stem being loose, the Snow Indian Prince, of and for Bristol, from Jamaica, David Griffith, Master.

Captain Minors, who arrived here last Tuesday from New-Providence, has brought in Thomas Wilson the Master, and the Crew, of the Scooner John & Joseph, of and from New-Providence, bound to Georgia, whom he took off the West End of Grand Bahama on the 25th ult. where the said Scooner was lost the 18th.

The New Goal being entirely finished, the Prisoners were removed thither from the Old on Monday last.

Tuesday being His Majesty's Birth-Day, when our gracious Sovereign entered into the Thirty-fourth Year of his Age, the Colours were displaying on the several Forts as usual, and on board the Shipping in the Harbour; the ARTILLERY COMPANY were under Arms and reviewed, and performed to Admiration; the Watch-Company was also under Arms, but not the Militia.—At Noon, the Forts fired the usual Salutes; the Viper Man of War also fired at One o'Clock; and His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor entertained the Gentlemen he had caused to be invited, with an elegant Dinner in the Council-Chamber. The Illuminations being contained in six Rooms of four Houses, are not worth mentioning: But an ingenious Man having prepared some Fireworks at the New Barracks, the Expence thereof was defrayed by Subscription Tickets.——Let not any hence infer, that the People here are not well affected to the present Government; they can be exceeded by none in Loyalty; but they cannot express Joy, while the Duty on Tea is continued, which they think an unconstitutional Imposition, and laid expressly to serve as a Precedent for raising others in future equally so.

The General Assembly of this Province is again prorogued, to Wednesday the 31st of July next.

The uncommon quantity of Rain that has fallen during the course of the last month, which is usually a dry one, has done incredible damage almost throughout the province, but more especially to the plantations upon the fresh-water river swamps, where the freshes have risen from 25 to more than 30 feet in 24 hours, totally destroyed the whole crops of a great number of industrious poorer (as well as rich) inhabitants, drowned a great quantity of cattle and hogs, and put many people to the greatest difficulties imaginable to save their lives, upon the tops of their houses, trees, and little ridges of high land: In short, the accounts from all quarters are very melancholly. The first cutting of Indico is entirely gone; Hemp has suffered much; and more than a third of the crop of Rice and Corn is thought to be lost. The principal sufferers are on the Congaree, Santee, Pedee, Wateree and Savannah rivers. Many planters in Georgia are also likely to sustain great losses by the late wet weather.—These accounts have occasioned the rise of the price of Rice to 3*l.* per hundred, and of Corn to 20 s. per bushel; and 'tis to be hoped, will prevent the farther exportation of the latter grain.

We hear, that there is a general failure of crops in the West-India islands, by a drought.

Our last letters from North-Carolina, some of which, dated yesterday morning, are just come to hand, represent the quiet of that province as in a fair way of being soon restored; upwards of two thousand of the Regulators having, since the battle of the 16th past, laid down their arms, upon Governor Tyron's proclamation, offering a pardon to all (except such as had been outlawed) that would immediately do so, pay their Taxes, take the oath of allegiance, and refuse any further protection to the outlaws. These letters add, that the Chief Justice and Assistant Judges were gone to hold a court of oyer and terminer at Hillsborough, for the trial of such of the outlaws as had been taken in battle and otherwise: And that his excellency had ordered one Mr. Few, who was an active officer in the Regulators army, and fought to the last, to be hanged at the head of the camp as soon as he was taken. Most of the particulars inserted in our last, are confirmed by the following extracts of letters. The disturbances in North-Carolina, which are now near terminating, began so long ago as in the year 1767.

Extract of a letter from General Waddel's division of the army, encamped on the waters of Grant's creek, about 4 miles from Salisbury in Rowan county, dated 20*th May*, 1771.

"——On the 9th inst. the Regulators appeared before us, to the number of 2 or 3000 [other accounts say, only 1500] with a determination to prevent a junction of our little army with the Governor's. A disaffection amongst some of our people, obliged us to retreat, which we did in an honourable manner, after standing our ground upwards of ten hours, within 50 or 60 yards of the enemy; and here we were waiting for orders from the Governor, who has been minutely acquainted with every circumstance relative to our situation, when, this morning at 2 o'clock, an express arrived from his excellency, advising, that he had an engagement with the Regulators, on the 16*th instant, at* Great Alamance, about 70 miles from us, wherein the latter were routed, and left about 300 men killed and wounded, besides about 20 prisoners. Butler, one of their principal leaders, is reported to be among the dead. It is said, they are rallying, and intend a second attack upon the Governor's army; but I think it most probable, they will now bend their whole force against us. In the mean time his excellency has required reinforcements from all quarters. ——"

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman at Hillsborough, who was in the battle of Alamance the 16*th ult.*

"——A Little before twelve the signal for battle was given, and the hottest engagement ensued that, perhaps, ever was fought in America by the same number of troops.—The firing continued without intermission for near an hour, when the artillery became too hot for service, and were withdrawn to cool; whereupon a considerable body of the Regulators, believing this a signal for retreating, again rallied, and came boldly to the charge; but they were suddenly convinced of their error; and his excellency gained a complete victory, after a very warm dispute, which lasted above two hours, and wherein not above two-thirds of his troops were actually engaged. In this affair Providence seems to have interposed in behalf of government. The amount of the killed and wounded, I believe, does not exceed fifty—of the dead, and such as may die of their wounds, I fancy there will not be more than 15 or 20. I cannot speak with so much certainty of the enemy's loss; the accounts yesterday morning were, about 200 dead, wounded, and taken; but the express, who left the camp late last night, says, both officers and men then talked of 350.—His excellency has ordered the same care to be taken of the wounded Regulators, as of those of his own troops."

Extract of a letter from an officer of distinction in Gov. Tryon's army, dated Alamance Camp, May 18, 1771.

"——WE halted two days at Hillsborough, during which time an express arrived with the disagreeable news, that the Regulators had surrounded general Waddel, with a force more considerable than it was imagined possible for them to muster; and that, in consequence of the desertion, or what is much the same, the connection he discovered to subsist between his own camp and the insurgents, that brave officer had the mortification to find a retreat to SALISBURY the only resource he had. Upon this intelligence, his excellency marched immediately for the settlements of these rebels, who had returned with avowed intentions of opposing his march; and they being, in appearance, as desirous of meeting us, as we could possibly be to meet them, a few days brought us within three miles of each other. It was expected, that they would have opposed our passage over the Haw river, where the ford was so defensible, that it must have cost a good deal of blood to have effected a passage; but, by a brisk march, we happily arrived there a day sooner than they expected us, and reach'd where we are now the 13th inst. The people round about us being generally malecontents, it was impossible to obtain any intelligence, relative to the insurgents, that we could depend upon, except that their number was considerable, and that they were determined to give us battle. On the 15th they sent to his excellency a paper, which they called a petition, purporting, that they desired his excellency to redress their grievances in a manner satisfactory to THEM, as the only means of preventing that bloodshed, which, from the order of the leaders and the troops on both sides, must otherwise ensue; and desired an answer in four hours. The messenger was dispatched with a reply that his excellency would send them an answer by twelve o'clock the next day; notwithstanding which, Mr. John Ashe (son of Mr. Samuel Ashe) and Mr. John Walker, who were sent out of camp upon duty, were seized by these people, on the very same night, not far from our camp, tucked up to trees, severely whipped, and made prisoners of 'till we released them the next day. On the 16th, in consequence of a resolution unanimously entered into the evening before, we marched about sun-rise in search of these rebels, whom we found encamped about 3 miles from our station. When we came within half a mile of them, three guns were fired as a signal to form in order of battle, which was immediately done, in two lines about an hundred yards from each other: They answered our guns, by three huzza's and by beating to arms; by which they shewed, how resolved they were to give us battle. His excellency having sent them, in answer to their petition, that, as he had in every circumstance, both in his particular and legislative character, pursued every measure in his power to quiet them, without effect, nothing was left him now to offer; but that they must make an immediate submission to government, a promise of payment of their taxes so long withheld from the public, an immediate return to their habitations, and that they would no longer protect those persons who had been indicted, from being brought to a fair trial for their offences; that he gave them an hour to consider of it; and, if they did not agree to proposals so fair, the consequence that should follow must be imputed to them. When our messenger arrived, they had not patience to read the proposal, but bid him return to BILLY TRYON, and tell him, that they defied him, and that BATTLE was what they wanted. Some of their leaders, however, prevailed on them to listen; but they again expressed impatience to engage, with the most horrid oaths that they would put every one of us to death. We then advanced within two hundred yards of them, where we halted. They were also advancing in order of battle, and their number surprised us. We did not believe it possible, that so many men could implicitly be under the influence of such men, as Hermon Husbands, James Hunter, Rednap Howell, &c. and in so bad a cause. They came, in that order, to a strait reach of the road, when they halted, waving their hats to us to advance, and daring us to do it. His excellency then sent a magistrate with an officer, to read the proclamation agreeable to act of assembly, ordering them to disperse within an hour, which he read accordingly; but they disdained to listen. BATTLE, BATTLE, BATTLE, was their cry; which they said they impatiently expected; that they only waited for us to fire the first gun, which they dared us to do. This conduct incensed our people to such a degree, that it was difficult to keep them from rushing upon the enemy. The unfeigned ardor they expressed to engage, was a happy presage of the victory which ensued, and gave the officers of the army the pleasing and certain assurance, of not being deserted by their men; which, in men new-raised, and many of them connected with the rebels, was a circumstance not impossible to suppose might happen. The Governor, with a coolness peculiar to himself, bore these insults with patience, 'till the hour expired, which time he spent in visiting the lines, company by company, putting every thing in order, recommending to the officers and men not to fall into disorder, and shewing, by his steadiness and serenity, and by the judicious disposition he made of the troops, that courage and that military skill which every general ought to possess. Being informed that the insurgents had an intention of putting Mr. Walker and Mr. Ashe in the front of their line, a message was sent them, by his excellency, that as he should keep the prisoners we had, in a place of safety, he depended they would do the same by Messrs. Walker and Ashe. They returned no direct answer to this; but said, they would give them up, provided his excellency would give up ALL we had taken of theirs. This unequal exchange was extremely grating to the Governor, as it implied a concession on the side of government, not quite consistent with the resolutions we had taken; but all of us joining in a petition to his excellency, to comply with it, lest they should hang up Walker and Ashe, he was so good as to grant our request, and sent them word, provided they would send the gentlemen to him, he would send our prisoners (in number seven) immediately to them. They agreed to this; but being very tardy in the execution, and our people complaining that standing in the sun began to make them faint, and clamoring to advance upon the enemy, it was thought adviseable to lead them on. We marched in profound silence, and in exact order upon them, their advanced guard and our first line met almost breast to breast. Our troops were ordered not to fire till they received his excellency's orders, so that they were almost mixed with those of the enemy, who were stationed at a little distance before their main body; they then slowly retreated to join their army, bellowing forth defiance, and daring us to fire. We proceedeed till within 20 or 25 yards of them, when we halted. They continued reviling us, daring us to fire, and asking us, why we delayed? that BATTLE, BATTLE was their wish; many of them advancing towards the artillery, opening their breasts and defying us to begin. The greatest part of their army were then open to us, and within 30 yards; but his excellency had promised not to fire upon them till the prisoners were delivered up, and till he gave them notice; and he would not break his word even with those infatuated wretches. During this time, we saw them going to the places they had agreed to occupy, and these were best calculated to secure themselves and annoy us. They had waited to receive us, so had an opportunity to chuse their ground, and it must be confessed they chose it with judgment. The ground they paraded upon was the place they wished us to stand at; and as they had contrived to station themselves, it was the only ground we could not without action obtain. We were entirely open to their fire, most of them as well secured as possible from ours, and as the greatest part of our artillery were in the road, they disposed their best troops to attack them.—In this situation, we impatiently expected the word fire. Upon the return of an adjutant, sent to receive Walker and Ashe, who brought word they would deliver them in half an hour, they were told, that we could wait no longer; and that if they did not immediately lay down their arms, we should immediately fire upon them. FIRE AND BE DAMNED, was their answer. The word was given, and the action immediately began, and as immediately became general.—The Governor's conduct can never be too much commended. He seemed present at every place, gave his orders with a composure and judgment which did him honour, and greatly contributed to the success of the day. The officers and men behaved with a bravery truly commendable, every order received was punctually executed; a regular and continual fire was kept up, and no exposure of person was dreaded or avoided. The hottest fire fell upon the artillery company, who (both officers and men) behaved in a manner truly brave and spirited. The artillery was served in a manner which did as much service to the cause, as honour to those concerned in the direction of it; about thirty were killed and wounded out of this small corps, which, in proportion to their number, you will think considerable, as it was served by two small companies. They killed and wounded a great many of our people (the number I do not know exactly) and amongst these are one or two officers, only one killed. By accounts we received from the Insurgents, and from some who have since the battle come in and surrendered themselves, they had above two hundred men killed and wounded. They fought us with a spirit that would have done them honour, in a good cause. We have taken a good many prisoners, among them some outlaws, who, I fancy, will be instantly hung up. Never was victory more complete. We took their provisions, ammunition, baggage, horses, saddles, &c. &c. We pursued them a good way from the field of battle; but our men being greatly fatigued, and our wounded requiring attention, we were ordered to return to the field, from which we marched into camp, where now we are. To-morrow we march to Hunter's, where, it is imagined, we shall halt, and send out detachments to collect the taxes, and to disperse the rebels wherever they are. News is just now brought, that they have again collected themselves, and are determined, by a desperate push, to retrieve their affairs; and that they expect to be joined by a thousand from Granville. We shall soon know the truth of this, and, if it is so, shall, I dare say, prevent their junction. Their number, when they fought us, was certainly two thousand; our number about half that.——"

The following Lines, which were written immediately upon the News of Mr. Mackenzie's Death coming to Town, were incorrectly printed in our last.

Imbellisque Lyræ Musa potens vetat.
Laudes egregii Cæsaris & tuas
Culpâ deterere Ingenii. Hor.

STRIKE, strike, O Muse, the melancholly String,
Whilst I MACKENZIE's Merits strive to sing;
And thou, who govern'st Pindus' Top, descend
To aid me in a Tribute to my Friend.
All social Virtues fir'd his honest Breast,
But PUBLIC Love shine brighter then the Rest;
A firmer PATRIOT never stemm'd the Flood
Of foul Oppression; in his Country's Good
He scorn'd Reproach, and Envy's feeble Blow;
To none, but to his Country's Foes, a Foe:
For Heav'n-born LIBERTY he boldly pled,
For her his Blood he would have freely shed;
The People's Freedom was his foremost Aim,
And Freedom's Sons will still revere his Name.
To form the Man, both Art and Nature join'd,
Science and Genius both adorn'd his Mind:
In CAM's instructive Walls he Learning caught,
Where ev'ry loyal Principle is taught;
There conversant in ancient classic Lore;
He eath'd the Flame which Romans had before;
There ev'ry nobler Virtue he imbib'd
What Cato did, and Cicero describ'd.
Too soon, alas! our Patriot left the Stage,
Lamenting deeply this degen'rate Age:
Foreseeing, with his penetrating Sight,
His Country's Bondage, hence he took his Flight;
The very Thought his noble Spirit broke,
His Free-born Soul could not sustain the Stroke.
In private Life he was excell'd by none,
In him Benevolence conspicuous shone;
Unbounded Charity, the social Glow,
The tender Feeling for another's Woe,
Open Sincerity, a willing Ear
The Widow's Cry and Orphan's Wants to hear;
Friendship most pure, Politeness most refin'd,
With tender conjugal Affection join'd,
To form his perfect Character conspire;
Which Envy, though unwilling, must admire.
"A Wit's a Feather, and a Chief's a Rod,
"An HONEST MAN's the noblest Work of God."

JOHN PARKER,

WILL DISPOSE OF,

(At private Sale)

HIS PLANTATION;

PLEASANTLY situated on the Head of Goofe-Creek, fixteen Miles from Charles-Town, fix from the Village of Dorcheſter, and about two from a Landing. It is ſo well known as to render any pompous Deſcription or Recommendation altogether unneceſſary, further than it is eſteemed, by competent Judges, inferior to very few Plantations in the Province. The Goodneſs of the Buildings, as well as of the Land, and its Vicinity to the Metropolis, are undoubtedly very conſiderable Advantages, and add greatly to its Value. This Tract, which joins Lands of John Ainſlie, Eſq; the Heirs of Sarah Elmes, Iſaac Godin, Alexander Fraſer, Eſq'rs. Major John Moultrie, Heirs of Thomas Bulline and Mrs. Harvey (late Charles Barkes'e) is ſuppoſed to contain about One Thouſand Five Hundred Acres, but will be ſold for One Thouſand Three Hundred Acres, more or leſs; about 250 Acres of which is Rice Land, which generally produces from two Barrels and an Half to three Barrels per Acre (very bad Years only excepted); Full 400 Acres prime Corn Land, which, by being properly drained, would produce either Indico, Hemp, or Madder. The Neighbourhood is excelled by none, and would be a very agreeable Summer's Retreat, as well as a Place of Profit, for a Gentleman of Fortune.

ALSO,

HIS HOUSE and LOT in St. Philip's, Charles-Town, containing in Front Seventy-ſeven Feet and an Half on Old Church or Meeting-Street, and about One Hundred and Ninety-five on a Street that leads from the Governor's Bridge and Mr. Raper's, called Pinckney's Street. On this Lot there is a cool, well-finiſhed Houſe, 23 Feet by 46, built of the beſt Materials, with Kitchen, Waſh-Houſe, Stable, Coach-Houſe, &c. The Cellar to the Dwelling-Houſe is above ſeven Feet in the Clear, all paved, and the Yard and Garden ſufficiently large, on which there is Room to erect two other Buildings, which may be done to great Advantage, by any Perſons who chuſe to make the moſt of their Money in that Way. The Terms of Payment, as the Money is not wanted, will be made agreeable to the Purchaſer. For further Particulars, apply to the Proprietor.

Who will diſpoſe of ALL his SLAVES, as ſoon as his Plantation is ſold (not before) and Poſſeſſion of the Premiſes may be had the firſt Day of July next, provided the Purchaſer take the Crop now on the Land, Stock, &c. otherwiſe not before the firſt of February next. The Houſe and Lot will be given up immediately.

N. B. The above Plantation will bear dividing, ſo as to have 80 Acres of Swamp in one Tract, with at leaſt 100 Acres of good High Land, Pine Barren, &c. All the Reſt of the Tract will go with the Buildings, if the Purchaſer chooſes it; or if more agreeable, a ſmall Tract only of about 140 Acres, ſeparate from the other, and purchaſed ſome Years ſince, will be taken off, and a proper Deduction made from the Price of the Whole.

ALSO FOR SALE,

A LANDAU, with Harneſs for four Horſes, not heavier than Coaches commonly are.——A light neat PHAETON, and a Pair of likely Bay CHARIOT HORSES, fourteen Hands and an Half high, which likewiſe anſwer well for the Saddle.

To be SOLD by public Outcry,

At Mr. JOSEPH LEVY'S, near Charles Town, on THURSDAY the 20th Day of June next,

ONE HUNDRED and FIFTY valuable NEGROES;—Among whom are thoſe of every Occupation for which a Planter can have Occaſion. Credit will be given for Eighteen Months, or to January 1ſt, 1773, with Intereſt and approved Security.

The Sale will begin preciſely at Ten o'Clock in the Forenoon; but ſhould the Weather that Day prove bad, it will be poſtponed to the firſt good Day thereafter.

ALSO FOR SALE,

TWO TRACTS of LAND, adjoining each other, on Chehaw Neck. They are bounded on the Eaſt by Aſhepoo River, on the Weſt by Chehaw River, and on the North-Eaſt by Lands of James Skirving, Eſq. One Tract contains Six Hundred and Forty Acres, granted in the Year 1707; the other contains One Hundred and Twenty Acres. Both Tracts are well timbered with large Yellow Pine, and contain proper Land for Rice and Corn. For further Particulars, apply to

ROBERT WELLS.

To be SOLD at private Sale, the following TRACTS OF LAND, viz.

Six Hundred Acres of Pine Barren, alſo on the ſame ſide of Black-River, and about 12 miles from George-Town.

One Thouſand Acres on Simpſon's Creek, one half of which is ſwamp, with ſome large Iſlands therein very fit for indico; the remaining half contains ſome good high land fit alſo for indico, and is well ſtock'd with timber and lightwood. This tract would do very well for two ſettlements, either for rice or indico, and is within 4 miles of a landing on Waccamaw-River.

Five Hundred Acres on Great-Pedee River, nearly the whole of which is good high ſwamp, a ſmall part being high land and convenient for buildings, &c. and about 35 miles from George-Town. The Pedee ſwamps are ſo well known to be fit for the culture of indico, that they need no encomiums.

Plats of any of the above lands may be ſeen in the hands of Doct. William Fyffe in George-Town, to whom apply for particulars, or to me in Charles-Town.
